CULTURAL CORNER

Las estaciones del año tienen condiciones climáticas especiales, pero... ¿son iguales en todos lados?

Las estaciones varían de acuerdo al lugar del mundo en que nos encontremos, es decir, de acuerdo con el hemisferio en el que estemos. El hemisferio norte y el hemisferio sur aparecen cuando se hace un corte imaginario al planeta justo en la mitad a la altura del ecuador. Las estaciones son opuestas entre los hemisferios: cuando en el hemisferio norte es invierno, en el hemisferio sur es verano. Por ejemplo, cuando en Estados Unidos (hemisferio norte) es invierno (diciembre, enero y febrero), en Argentina (hemisferio sur) es verano; cuando en Inglaterra es primavera (marzo, abril, mayo), en Australia (hemisferio sur) es otoño.

Los cambios a los que nos tiene acostumbrados cada estación ¿se vivirán igual en cada lugar?

No en todos los países se considera que hay cuatro estaciones. En Alaska, por ejemplo, la gente suele decir que hay tres estaciones: winter, still winter, and construction season (invierno, invierno otra vez y temporada de construcción); incluso en algunas partes de la India, tienen seis ritu o estaciones según el calendario Hindú: vasanta (primavera), grishma (verano), varsha (lluvia o monzón), sharat (otoño), hemant (preinvierno) y shishira (invierno).

Les compartimos un poema sobre las estaciones del año, ¿por qué creen que cada una se relaciona con un color?

*Spring is green,
summer is bright,
autumn is yellow
and winter is white*
